

TQC Sheen X-Rite RM200QC Spectrocolorimeter

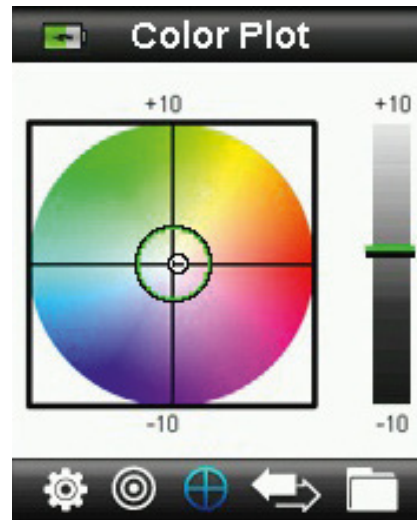

Make Quick Color Comparisons

If your color requirements are too important to trust subjective visual evaluation, the X-Rite RM200QC Spectrocolorimeter can remove uncertainty with measured color data. This affordable spectrophotometer is more accurate and reliable than other basic colorimeters and adds objective color evaluation to your workflow.

The portable X-Rite RM200QC fits comfortably in your hand to capture fast measurements and slips into your pocket or bag for quick color decisions anywhere. Simply upload a standard, set a tolerance, take a measurement, and quickly see pass/fail indicators right on the device screen. Using this affordable spectrophotometer will boost color quality when color requirements go beyond visual evaluation alone.

Make Fast Pass/Fail Decisions

- Create and store up to 30 Pantone, Munsell, and custom standards using the averaging function for highest accuracy
- See the difference between the standard and the measured sample on an easy-to-understand graphic on the device screen
- Remove the subjectivity associated with visual evaluation and physical swatches with accurate color data
- Eliminate issues related to staff experience; everyone uses the same convenient, reliable device with an easy pass/fail indication based on approved standards

Color plot shows the difference between standard and sample.

Store up to 350 measurements on the device.

Handy carrying case protects instrument from damage.
